Audi AG (Audi) is a German car brand founded in 1909 by Horst Audi, Horch (formerly the auto brand founded by August Horst in 1899), Wanderer and DKW joined Auto Union AG in 1932. The four-ring Audi emblem represents these four companies. At the end of The Second World War, the Factories of the Auto Union took over the Soviet Union, which occupied the eastern part of Germany. Auto Union GmbH was restarted in Bavaria, in western Germany, in 1949. DKW was pioneering the front-wheel drive of cars with transverse installed engines in the early 1930s. In 1958, Daimler-Benz AG bought the company's land. Volkswagen bought the property in 1964. The Audi brand name was resurrected by the new car model Mercedes developed a four-stroke engine in 1965. The last DKW was produced by the German company NSU, founded in 1873, which manufactures cars between 1906 and 1929 and again from 1958 to 1977, merged with Audi in 1969. Many of the Audi models produced after Volkswagen took ownership of the brand were VW's with Audi badges. Secretly and in contrast to parent company Volkswagen, Audi developed the 100. The model was launched in 1968, once again reviving the identity of the Audi brand. The Quattro four-wheel drive system, used in dkw mungas and Volkswagen Ittis, both small four-wheel-drive military vehicles, evolved in the 1980s. The Quattro four-wheel drive system was later applied to other Audi range models. Volkswagen transformed Audi into a premium brand for groups of 1980s and 90s.
